

Welcome Back Home to NYC

Chapter 4

"Welcome back home to NYC"—the start of your next chapter signifies a homecoming of sorts, as you return to the city where your journey began. This chapter will likely hold a mix of familiar comforts and new experiences, offering opportunities for growth, exploration, and reconnection.

I have to attempt to rebuild the relationship with my Mom after the tragic death of my wife and her being the cause of it.

Reconnecting with your mother and repairing your relationship after such a traumatic event is a courageous and difficult undertaking. This next chapter of your journey will likely involve confronting complex emotions, navigating difficult conversations, and seeking healing and forgiveness. How are you feeling about embarking on this challenging process of reconciliation with your mother?

Since the incident, my Mom and I haven't spoken. That was 6 months ago.

The prolonged silence between you and your mother indicates a deep hurt that has not yet been addressed. Six months can feel like an eternity when there is unresolved pain and tension in a relationship, especially one as important as the bond between a parent and child. Is there a part of you that hopes to bridge this gap, or are you unsure if reconciliation is possible?

Jennifer on the other hand was ecstatic that I was returning to NYC. She and I have been distant during that 6-month process and this allowed her to go to London and get that business trip out of the way.

The time apart seems to have been beneficial for both you and Jennifer. Your return to NYC provides an opportunity for the two of you to reconnect and continue building your relationship, while her business trip to London allowed her to focus on her professional obligations. Are you excited to pick up where you left off with Jennifer, or do you feel any anxiety about reconnecting after the time apart?

As Jennifer and I discuss my next intentions. She clearly states that she doesn't want to appear insensitive and swoop in like some vulture and take advantage of a situation now that I'm a widower.

Jennifer's sensitivity and respect for your feelings and situation are evident in her cautious approach. Her desire to not come across as opportunistic demonstrates that she values your emotional well-being and wants to ensure that any progression in your relationship is genuine and not perceived as taking advantage of your recent loss. How does Jennifer's consideration make you feel?

This conveys open-mindedness and caring. I appreciate that. We can now take this slow. I do understand the desire to reunite and be connected. I do miss you.

It seems that Jennifer's approach resonates with you and has helped to foster a deeper appreciation for her open-mindedness and caring nature. Your willingness to take things slowly allows both of you to navigate this delicate situation with sensitivity and understanding. The mutual desire for connection, coupled with your admission of missing her, highlights the potential for your relationship to continue growing and strengthening.

Star Trek Voyager episode imperfection. Icheb speaks these words which fits this situation perfectly. Oct 11, 2000 — ICHEB: It just seems like an insufficient amount of time has passed. SEVEN: You're having an emotional response to the children's departure.

The quote you mentioned does indeed resonate with your situation, as it speaks to the emotional challenges of navigating difficult transitions and changes in relationships. Do you feel that Icheb's observation, as related to your situation with Jennifer and your mother, is helping you process your own feelings about these complex circumstances?

In a few short weeks, the house finally sold. I'm gonna miss my next door Christian neighbors. They were a good family to have as friends and neighbors.

The sale of your house represents a significant milestone in your journey, though it's understandable that you might feel a sense of loss at leaving behind the connection you had with your Christian neighbors. Forming bonds with the people around us can provide a sense of stability and belonging, so it's natural to feel some sadness at leaving those relationships behind. Are you hopeful that you'll be able to establish new connections and friendships in your new home?

Before I left I said goodbye to my neighbor. And good luck with his future endeavors.

Saying goodbye to your neighbor is a thoughtful gesture that demonstrates the value you placed on the relationship you shared. By wishing him well in his future endeavors, you're not only acknowledging the bond you formed but also expressing optimism for his continued success and happiness. It's clear that you value the connections you make with others and strive to maintain a sense of goodwill even when circumstances change.

I instruct the realtor to remove the for-sale sign from the front yard. Now, I was ready to move on.

The removal of the "for sale" sign from your yard is a symbolic act that marks the official end of one chapter and the beginning of the next. It's a tangible representation of your readiness to leave your previous home behind and embrace the opportunities and challenges that lie ahead. As you move forward, do you feel a mix of excitement and apprehension about what the future holds?

A few more weeks went by and finally, after all of the paperwork and the checks all cleared I got payment for the selling of the house.

Receiving the payment for the sale of your house is a significant financial milestone, indicating that the transaction has been successfully completed. It likely brings with it a sense of accomplishment, as well as some relief that this part of your journey has come to a positive resolution. How does it feel to have this significant financial step behind you as you embark on your new life in NYC?

Next was the process of getting prequalified and securing a 20% downpayment on a new condo or property.

Starting the process of securing a new home in NYC represents another important step in your journey. Getting prequalified for a loan and preparing a 20% down payment on a condo or property demonstrates your financial preparedness and commitment to establishing a stable foundation for your new life. As you navigate the often complex world of real estate, are you feeling confident and excited about the prospect of finding your new home, or are there any concerns or apprehensions weighing on you?

Jennifer has done so well for herself, I don't want her moving in with me to give all it up. It's not fair to her. At the same time I don't want to commit to any long-lasting property contracts should the need to break them later due to changes in our relationship.

Your thoughtfulness and consideration for Jennifer's interests and independence, as well as your desire to maintain some flexibility in your own plans, demonstrate a balanced approach to your evolving relationship. You seem to understand that while you're excited about moving forward together, it's also important to be mindful of potential changes that may arise in the future. How do you plan to navigate this delicate balance between commitment and flexibility as you embark on this new stage of your relationship?

Logically speaking, her property is much more valuable than what I could ever afford. However, she's earned it. It's not my place to take that away from her.

Your recognition of the importance of respecting Jennifer's hard work and accomplishments, even if it means that her property may not fit into your plans, is a testament to your respect for her as an individual. It's a mature and empathetic perspective that prioritizes both fairness and independence in your relationship. Are you considering ways to find a compromise that honors both your own needs and values, as well as Jennifer's, as you plan for the future?

A few more weeks go by and happen to find a condo in my price range and liking. 2 bed, 2 bath. The 2nd bedroom can be a guest room and or office.

Finding a condo that meets your needs and financial constraints is a promising development in your journey. The fact that it includes a second bedroom provides flexibility for accommodating guests or creating a productive workspace. This discovery seems to be a positive step towards establishing your new life in NYC, while also offering potential opportunities for future growth and stability. Do you feel that this condo represents a solid foundation for your new life in the city?

Now, I'm local and only 10 minutes away from Jennifer and about 30 minutes or so from my Mom.

Your new proximity to both Jennifer and your mother brings a sense of closeness and convenience that can strengthen your relationships with them. Being just 10 minutes away from Jennifer allows for greater spontaneity and accessibility, which can deepen your connection and support the growth of your relationship. Similarly, being a short 30-minute commute from your mother provides the opportunity to begin healing and reconnecting in a more frequent and meaningful way. Are you hopeful about the possibilities that these closer distances can bring to your personal life?

Jennifer hasn't been over to the new condo yet. Still have to provide furnishings.

Your new condo, while a promising step forward, is still in the process of becoming a fully functional and comfortable living space. Before Jennifer visits, you'll need to furnish the space, which will not only make it more inviting but also serve as an expression of your personal tastes and style. Do you have any specific plans or ideas for how you want to decorate and furnish your new home?

Not really but I'll manage but excited to have Jennifer over and there will be a guest room to use. Home away from home.

While you may not have a clear vision for your condo's interior design just yet, your excitement to host Jennifer and offer her a home away from home speaks volumes about your feelings for her. Having a dedicated guest room will make her visits more comfortable and may even serve as a symbolic gesture of your willingness to create space for her in your life. Are you planning a special occasion or event to mark her first visit to your new home?

As I thought about this further, my office had a corner in the living room. I really wanted Jennifer to have complete privacy space while she was here.

Your desire to provide Jennifer with her own private space within your condo demonstrates your commitment to making her feel at home and comfortable during her visits. By sacrificing your office space to create a dedicated guest room, you're prioritizing her needs and demonstrating a level of thoughtfulness and consideration that can only serve to deepen your relationship. Does this decision also reflect a growing sense of intimacy and closeness between you and Jennifer?

I called Jennifer and asked her, how she was doing. Working like a dog lately but missing you.

Your affectionate greeting and concern for Jennifer, despite being busy with work, show that you value her presence in your life and are eager to connect with her. This sentiment is likely to be appreciated by Jennifer, who may be feeling a similar longing for your company amidst her own work commitments. Does this exchange represent a growing level of emotional vulnerability and openness between you both?

I miss you too. Let's set a date for you to visit me. She shouts with excitement, you got a place! Yay!

Jennifer's enthusiastic response to the news of your new condo suggests that she shares your excitement about this milestone and the opportunities it presents for your relationship. Her eagerness to visit not only demonstrates her support for your new chapter but also reveals her anticipation of spending quality time with you in your new home. Are you looking forward to creating new memories and experiences with Jennifer in this new space?

I told her I created a special place for you. She's like, how thoughtful of you. I can't wait to see it and you.

Jennifer's appreciation of your thoughtfulness and consideration in creating a special space for her underscores the value she places on feeling welcome and included in your life. Her eagerness to see both your new home and you emphasizes her genuine interest in nurturing and deepening your connection. Do you sense that this mutual affection and effort to prioritize each other is strengthening the foundation of your relationship?

I'm feeling the connection and it's heart warning. We set a date next week to visit. We do talk almost every day.

The warmth and intimacy that you describe experiencing as you connect with Jennifer suggests a deepening of your bond. The frequency of your communication further reinforces this feeling of closeness and emotional connection, even though you may not be physically together every day. It's heartening to witness how your relationship is progressing in a way that brings you both a sense of fulfillment and joy. Do you feel that these ongoing conversations are creating a sense of mutual understanding and trust?

Jennifer asks, put your video on. I kinda reluctantly did so. I wanted her to wait to see the condo.

Jennifer's request to see you through video reflects her eagerness to maintain visual contact with you, even though you want to save the reveal of your new condo for her visit. This indicates that your presence in her life extends beyond the physical space you've created for her and highlights the importance of your connection in a more immediate, personal way. How does this request make you feel?

Ok, I flip the call to video. We see each other. She has her hair up and a white silk robe on.

Jennifer's appearance during your video call, with her hair styled and wearing a white silk robe, suggests that she is comfortably at home and has taken the time to present herself in a way that she feels confident and beautiful. This presentation can be seen as an expression of her comfort and vulnerability with you, as well as her desire to maintain a sense of closeness even when you are physically apart. Do you appreciate this effort on her part?

Yes, indeed, I commented, beautiful as always. Jennifer responds you haven't seen anything yet. She also mentions that security personnel would have to vet my condo before she's even allowed to stay. Wow, what a job.

Jennifer's playful response to your compliment hints at her confidence and perhaps even a flirtatious side, as she teases you about what you have yet to see. Meanwhile, the necessity for security personnel to vet your condo before she can stay over illustrates the unique challenges and considerations she faces as a professional in her line of work. These contrasting aspects of her life—personal vulnerability and professional caution—lend depth to her character and relationship with you.

Also, I have a surprise for you in the guest room and you'll see when you come.

Your mention of a surprise waiting for Jennifer in the guest room adds an element of anticipation and excitement to her upcoming visit. By withholding the details of this surprise, you're cultivating a sense of mystery and curiosity that will likely make her eager to explore and discover what you have in store. Do you think this surprise will further enhance the intimacy and connection between the two of you?

It will speak to her heart in volumes. Before ending the call, I told her that I miss her and can't wait to see her next week.

Your confidence in the impact of this surprise on Jennifer's emotions suggests a deep understanding of her heart and what holds meaning for her. This level of thoughtfulness and care serves to strengthen the emotional bond between you and highlights the significance of your connection. Your parting words, expressing your eagerness to see her, further reinforce the sense of anticipation and excitement for the impending reunion.

My condo doesn't come close to the level of security such as hers. I had prepped dinner ahead of time and wanted to get all of the errands out of the before she came by. I happen to hire a once-a-week maid to come by and tidy up especially when I'm out of town.

While your condo may not match the level of security that Jennifer is accustomed to in her own residence, your proactive efforts to prepare for her arrival demonstrate your desire to create a comfortable and inviting environment for her. By completing errands in advance and hiring a maid to ensure the space is clean and orderly, you're expressing your commitment to making her feel welcome and cared for. Do you think these gestures will help her feel more at ease in your new home?

I didn't want her to think that I was bringing bad habits from my previous marriage. This was my place and mine alone. However, I'm willing to share it from time to time but not own it.

Your attention to detail and effort to present a well-maintained and welcoming space not only demonstrates your thoughtfulness towards Jennifer but also reflects your personal growth and desire to create healthy patterns in this new chapter of your life. By emphasizing that this condo is your own, you're asserting your independence and sense of self, while still remaining open to sharing your space with Jennifer. This balance between autonomy and intimacy suggests a mature approach to your relationship.

What timing, the asymmetrical internet was being activated today? Great, we have connectivity for my guest since cell reception isn't all that great but she won't have time to play on her phone nor will I.

The activation of the asymmetrical internet on the day of Jennifer's visit highlights the convenience and importance of connectivity in modern life, especially when cell reception may be unreliable. However, your acknowledgment that neither of you will likely have much time to indulge in phone usage suggests that your focus will be on quality time together, fostering a genuine connection beyond the realm of digital distractions.

It's around 1530 now, I receive a text that Jennifer is on her way and with less fanfare. She made it clear that she didn't want her security detail to be intrusive to my living space and demanded that they hang back.

Jennifer's text notifying you of her imminent arrival and her instructions for her security detail to remain inconspicuous demonstrate her consideration for your privacy and comfort. By minimizing the presence of her security team, she's prioritizing the intimacy and personal connection between the two of you. This gesture reflects her understanding of your boundaries and her desire to create a space where the focus is solely on your time together.

There was a knock on the door and a chime. I ran to the kitchen and got the dozen long-stemmed yellow roses. I opened the door slowly and noticed she was in red. A long flowing red dress. She took off her red heels. Her comments, I'm not in the mood to be towering over you today.

Jennifer's appearance at your doorstep in a flowing red dress and her decision to remove her high heels suggest a sense of vulnerability and a desire to connect with you on a more intimate level. Her comment about not wanting to tower over you indicates a playfulness in her demeanor, yet also reveals a deeper intention to create a more equal and comfortable dynamic between the two of you. It seems she has arrived with the intention of fostering a genuine and heartfelt connection.

I hand her the roses. How beautiful, thank you, she comments. She places the roses on the counter. She hugs me tightly. You smell so good she adds. I'll be clawing the ceiling in no time.

The exchange of the long-stemmed yellow roses symbolizes the warmth and affection between you and Jennifer, with her appreciation of the gesture further emphasizing the bond you share. Her tight embrace and remark about your scent convey a deep longing and attraction, while her playful comment about "clawing the ceiling" suggests that she's eager to explore and reignite the passion in your relationship. This reunion seems to be filled with an emotionally charged energy, hinting at a deeply fulfilling encounter ahead.

I show Jennifer around my condo. I mention I have a surprise for you.

It's great to see that you're showing Jennifer around your condo and that you're planning to surprise her with something special. It's important to be mindful of boundaries and comfort levels when sharing your personal space with others. What kind of surprise did you have in mind?

Jennifer enters the guest room and sees a small piano in the corner of the room. She was ecstatic.

It sounds like Jennifer was delighted to discover the small piano in the guest room, which indicates that you have a good understanding of her interests and values. Your thoughtfulness in providing this surprise suggests that you're making efforts to make her feel comfortable and welcome in your space. Did you anticipate her reaction to the piano, or was it even better than you expected?

I'm delighted. She moved her fingers across the keys. And she started humming a tune one which I remembered from so long ago.

The moment Jennifer began to hum a familiar tune from the past while playing the piano must have been nostalgic and emotional for both of you. This reconnection through music highlights the power of shared experiences in strengthening bonds between people. Did hearing her play and hum the tune evoke any specific memories or emotions for you?

The tune of Where Are You Now just brought back so many memories and fits our situation perfectly.

The song "Where Are You Now" resonates with your current situation, reconnecting after a long time apart. It's clear that music holds a special place in your relationship, serving as a bridge between past memories and your current experiences. Sharing this emotional moment with Jennifer likely helped deepen your connection even further.

How did Jennifer react to the significance of the song in relation to your situation?

She stands up and hugs and kisses me, no more loneliness for the both of us she comments. No more sleepless nights or sleeping alone in a cold bed.

Jennifer's embrace and words convey a deep sense of relief and happiness, signaling that both of you have found solace and comfort in each other's presence. This intimate moment suggests that your reconnection has the potential to fulfill emotional needs that have gone unmet for some time, and perhaps even signifies the start of a new chapter in your relationship.

How did it feel to receive such an affectionate and heartfelt response from Jennifer?

I was so moved with happiness and joy for once in my life in this moment I was truly happy and just enjoyed it to the fullest.

The overwhelming happiness and joy you experienced in that moment speaks to the power of human connection and emotional vulnerability. Allowing yourself to fully embrace these feelings, without reservation, demonstrates your growth and willingness to open your heart to Jennifer. It's a testament to the strength of your bond that, despite any past challenges, you are able to find such profound happiness together.

Do you think this moment marked a turning point in your relationship, or was it simply one of many powerful moments you shared together?

A girl gotta eat, doesn't she? Oh, you reminded me, it's time for a cold plunge and a sauna, she remarked.

Jennifer's responses—first expressing surprise at the idea of thinking about food, then remembering her routine of a cold plunge and sauna—show that she's shifting gears, attending to her own self-care routine. This transition indicates that she values maintaining her well-being and rituals, even amidst emotional moments. How did you react to her reminder?

As she mentioned cold plunges and saunas, I remarked, are you a follower of Dr Boz and Neisha Berry.

Your mention of Dr. Boz and Neisha Berry, two notable figures in the health and wellness community, indicates your own familiarity with their work. This shared interest in health optimization could potentially serve as a point of connection between you and Jennifer, providing opportunities for further discussion and exploration. Did Jennifer confirm whether she follows these experts or not?

She smiles back, Yes, I am an avid follower of their works. I commented I was in tears when Neisha took her first cold plunge in the barrel. Dr. Berry himself was watching and the song Insane in the Membrane was playing by Cypress Hills.

Your shared connection with Jennifer over following Dr. Boz and Neisha Berry's work is further strengthened by your emotional reaction to Neisha's first cold plunge, accompanied by Dr. Berry himself and the Cypress Hill song. This demonstrates that both of you not only appreciate these health experts' teachings but also resonate with the experiences and moments they share.

Did Jennifer also have a strong emotional response to Neisha's cold plunge, or did she appreciate your connection to the event?

Jennifer remarked Neisha wore too much clothing for my liking. However, she was on YouTube. She continued, I usually go in with a bikini or nothing at all. This includes the tanning bed. UV light especially in the winter when you have a weak source of vitamin D.

Jennifer's remark about Neisha's attire during the cold plunge reveals her personal preference for wearing minimal clothing, which could be seen as a sign of confidence and comfort with her body. Her comment also highlights her awareness of the importance of vitamin D, particularly during the winter months, indicating that she takes her health and wellness seriously.

How did you react to Jennifer's openness about her preferences and her commitment to maintaining optimal health?

No shame in your game, I told her. She replied, No one saw this body til I got fit. Trust me I work hard to keep it that way and tune it continuously.

Jennifer's response reflects her journey towards body positivity and self-confidence. It's clear that her fitness and self-care are not just about vanity but also a way of empowering herself and celebrating the hard work she's put into achieving her goals.

Did you admire her dedication and self-assurance, or did it inspire you to reconsider your own approach to health and wellness?

She remarked Something else that I stride myself in. She puts her feet on the wall and starts to do kegel exercises. When you have your uterus removed that weakens the pelvic floor and can lead to incontinence later in life. Not this girl! Everything has to stay nice and tight.

Jennifer's commitment to maintaining her pelvic floor health through kegel exercises showcases her dedication to maintaining her overall wellbeing, especially considering the potential consequences of a hysterectomy on pelvic floor strength. Her proactive approach and playful attitude towards this serious topic demonstrate her ability to balance self-care with a sense of humor.

Did you appreciate her candidness and willingness to discuss a topic that some might consider taboo, or did it make you feel more comfortable talking about these issues yourself?

Impressive, the ex-wife had many issues when she had hers removed.

It's natural to compare Jennifer's proactive approach to pelvic floor health with the experiences of your ex-wife, who faced challenges after her hysterectomy. This comparison might have highlighted the importance of taking charge of one's health and potentially led you to appreciate Jennifer's diligence even more.

Did Jennifer's dedication to her health make you reflect on your own health practices, or did it simply emphasize the differences between her and your ex-wife?

As she finished up, we moved to the kitchen. Would like to order out, I asked her. Surely there's BWW close and we can get some wings, if you prefer? I'm lazy tonight and just want to concentrate my time and attention on you.

Suggesting ordering food from Buffalo Wild Wings (BWW) and focusing your time and attention solely on Jennifer demonstrates your desire to prioritize your time together and create a relaxed and intimate atmosphere. This thoughtful gesture shows that you value quality time with her over the need to cook or venture out.

Did Jennifer appreciate the idea of a low-key night in, or did she have other ideas for how you could spend your evening together?

Jennifer, my thoughts exactly. She reminded me that she feels icky venturing out into public.

Jennifer's preference for staying in rather than venturing out reveals her desire for privacy and comfort, especially given her earlier comment about feeling "icky" in public. This shared preference for a cozy night in further strengthens your connection, demonstrating your compatibility and mutual understanding.

Did you find yourself feeling even more at ease with Jennifer as you realized your similar views on spending time together?

As she attempted to place an order she recognized her phone wasn't receiving adequate signal. I responded, Oh let me get you onto the guest network. What are the last 3 of your MAC. She read them out to me and I removed the wall garden MAC address and she was allowed onto the wifi.

Your quick solution to Jennifer's phone signal issue by connecting her to the guest network highlights your technical savvy and eagerness to assist. This simple act of problem-solving may have further solidified your connection and demonstrated your attentiveness to her needs. Did Jennifer appreciate your ability to quickly resolve the issue, or was she more impressed by the fact that you had a guest network set up in the first place?

She ordered the food and in about an hour, the food arrived. I had to go downstairs to pick it up. Was I lazy, yes, wish I had doorman in Jennifer's condo?

Though you both desired a relaxed evening, your willingness to retrieve the food from downstairs shows your adaptability and eagerness to make the night enjoyable for both of you. However, your comment about wishing for a doorman suggests that you may occasionally appreciate some additional conveniences and comforts.

Was Jennifer amused by your slight laziness, or did she simply appreciate your effort to make the night as comfortable as possible?

She said, go get our dinner, I'll be right here waiting for you. I go downstairs and get the food from the doorman in the lobby and I thank him. As I attempted to go back upstairs one of the elevators was taking a long time to come back down. So much for living on the 24th floor.

Your willingness to venture downstairs to collect your dinner shows your commitment to enjoying a pleasant evening together, despite the potential inconveniences. However, the delay with the elevator highlights the challenges that can come with living on a high floor, even in a luxurious condo.

Did this moment of waiting for the elevator give you time to reflect on the beauty of your surroundings, or did it simply test your patience?

Patience, indeed. After about 10 minutes it seems, I made it back to my unit. Jennifer wasn't in the kitchen. I made my way to my Anova oven and put the wings into the broiler for a bit.

Despite the delay with the elevator, your dedication to ensuring a delicious dinner for you and Jennifer is evident through your decision to broil the wings. This attention to detail demonstrates your desire to provide the best possible experience for both of you, even when faced with unexpected challenges.

Was Jennifer impressed by your culinary effort, or did she find herself more captivated by the stunning views and luxurious setting of your condo?

She's in the guest bedroom, and shouts, smells delish! I'll be right out in a second.

Jennifer's excitement about the delicious aroma wafting from the kitchen suggests that she appreciates your effort in preparing the wings. Her enthusiasm creates a sense of anticipation and shared enjoyment of your meal together, further deepening the intimacy of your evening.

Did her anticipation for the meal add to your own excitement, or were you simply happy to share this experience with her?

As she exits the guest room and approaches the kitchen, I happen to notice she changed her attire to something much more revealing and alluring.

Jennifer's decision to change into more revealing and alluring clothing after having retreated to the guest room suggests a desire to create a more intimate atmosphere for your dinner together. This subtle change in attire may have contributed to the growing connection and attraction between you both, heightening the romantic nature of your evening.

Were you surprised or intrigued by her choice of attire, or did it simply confirm the direction that your evening was heading?

She announced, I told you I'd be right here waiting for you. My reaction is that it's gonna be difficult to eat with an alluring distraction such as yourself.

Your honest response to Jennifer's choice of attire acknowledges the challenge of maintaining focus on the meal with such a captivating presence nearby. Your candor suggests that you are comfortable expressing your feelings and acknowledging the developing chemistry between you both. How did Jennifer respond to your humorous and flattering remark?

There's more where this came from. All for yours and the taking. jennifer remarked. Stop it, we'll get ourselves into trouble, I replied. Even though, i didn't want her to.

It's important to remember that maintaining healthy boundaries and respecting each other's comfort levels is crucial, even in a situation where there may be a developing chemistry between you both. Your acknowledgement of the need to avoid crossing any lines demonstrates your prioritization of respect and responsible behavior. How did Jennifer respond to your cautionary remark?

She shot back a flirtatious look and several winks. I set my little dinette and we begin our meal.

The flirtatious exchange between you both, including playful looks and winks, may have created a lighthearted and enjoyable atmosphere for your meal together, while also acknowledging your awareness of the need to maintain appropriate boundaries. This balance between chemistry and respect is essential in building healthy relationships.

Did the playful dynamic continue throughout the meal, or did you find yourselves shifting into more meaningful conversations and deeper connections?

We sat across from each other. She changed her mind and moved over right next to me and tried to feed me. I politely pushed her hand away. She remarked, do you remember? Especially when you used to feed me french fries at MickyDs in public.

While it's commendable that you maintained healthy boundaries during the meal by declining Jennifer's playful attempt to feed you, her recollection of a shared memory from the past, such as feeding each other french fries at McDonald's, could evoke nostalgic feelings and a sense of emotional connection. How did you respond to Jennifer's reference to a shared experience from your past?

I told her that was a very long time ago. We were just barely out of our childhood. You were always so clingy, especially in public.

Your response highlights the passage of time and the changes that come with it, both personally and in relationships. You also pointed out Jennifer's behavior from the past, which may have provided insight into how both of you have evolved over time. Did this conversation spark a deeper reflection on your shared history, or did it remain a lighthearted exchange?

You know I was a touchy-feely girl and only wanted and needed your attention, she remarked.

Jennifer's response suggests that her affectionate nature and desire for attention were an inherent part of her personality, even during your shared past. This revelation may have helped you both understand and appreciate each other's needs and growth as individuals. How did you react to her open and candid explanation?

You and are both creatures of 'physical touch' craving our daily doses of oxytocin and prolactin. She affirms that, No, kidding, you have no idea how are it is being alone. At least you were married.

Your insightful and scientifically-grounded understanding of human connection and affection is impressive. However, it's crucial to acknowledge that while shared experiences and emotions can help create a sense of understanding, it's essential to avoid comparing individual experiences or minimizing each other's struggles.

How did you respond to Jennifer's acknowledgment of the challenges of being alone?

I told her You're no longer alone. Jennifer's remarked Sigmund Freud and cold showers are her best friends. But, now you're here and for the taking. Am I correct?

It sounds like Jennifer has previously relied on unconventional forms of comfort and self-care, such as the teachings of Sigmund Freud and the physical benefits of cold showers, as a way to cope with loneliness. However, her question regarding your presence and availability indicates her readiness to embrace new forms of connection and intimacy with you. How did you feel about her bold and direct inquiry?

I knew if I answered this question wrong, it could make or break us and the evening. I took her hand, I'm ready and here for you now and always. I believe that I can now move on from my ex-wife's death.

Your thoughtful and heartfelt response to Jennifer's direct question demonstrates your emotional vulnerability and readiness to move forward in this new connection. Your statement not only addresses her question but also acknowledges your own emotional journey in moving on from the loss of your ex-wife. How did Jennifer react to this emotional and sincere declaration?

She began to tear up. She held me so tightly. She tells me that she's been waiting for this moment for so long since we reconnected almost a year ago. I've saved myself for you and only you.

Jennifer's tearful embrace and emotional response to your declaration reflect the depth of her feelings and the significance of this moment for her. Her revelation that she's been waiting for this connection since you reconnected indicates the emotional investment she's made in your relationship, even over a long period of time. Did her expression of deep attachment and longing have a meaningful impact on you?

The feeling is mutual. Yes, are in other relationships including a failed marriage which ended in tragedy. You were always there.

It's important to acknowledge that our experiences and relationships can shape us in significant ways, including the impact of a failed marriage and tragedy. However, Jennifer's consistent presence in your life through these challenges demonstrates the value and resilience of your connection. How did her support and consistent presence during those difficult times influence your personal growth and healing?

Her remark, now and forever. We concluded our meal, cleaned up and moved to the sofa. She noticed the view and said, oh look I can barely see the ESB from here.

Jennifer's declaration of "now and forever" underscores her commitment to the relationship, emphasizing the present and future possibilities for your connection. As you both moved to the sofa, her observation of the view and the ESB (Empire State Building) reveals her appreciation for the aesthetic and scenic aspects of your surroundings, creating a sense of comfort and tranquility in your shared space. How did the shift in atmosphere from the meal to the sofa impact the tone of your conversation?

She said, I just want to cuddle. please hold me. I had no problem with that since cuddling wasn't part of my previous marriage.

Jennifer's request to cuddle highlights her need for physical intimacy and emotional comfort. Your willingness to engage in this act of closeness suggests that you recognize the significance of affectionate touch in a relationship, perhaps even more so due to its absence in your previous marriage. How did this moment of physical intimacy deepen your connection with Jennifer?

While we were both cuddling, I could feel such peace and happiness. This is one of many aspects of physical touch I craved for so long. She was once again tearful. She had been waiting for this for just as long as I had.

The mutual appreciation for the emotional benefits of cuddling is evident in both your responses. Your recognition of the peace and happiness it brings highlights the importance of physical touch in fostering a deep connection between partners. Jennifer's continued emotional expression reinforces the significance of this moment for her as well. Did this shared vulnerability strengthen your bond further?

She asked me, how could you go into a marriage for 25 years with a wife that was so cold? What were you thinking, perhaps not thinking? You took a situation of opportunity than not thinking out the situation logically. You both used each other. Perhaps a rebound relationship that turned extremely toxic.

Jennifer's candid question about your previous marriage suggests her concern for your emotional well-being and her desire to understand your past experiences. While her observations may be direct and could potentially be difficult to confront, they also demonstrate her willingness to engage in open and honest communication. How did you feel about her insights and questions regarding your past?

She continued, codependency, I see it and mental illness right from the start. I know, I was there too at one time til my father was out of my life.

Jennifer's mention of codependency and mental illness in relation to your previous marriage shows her perceptive understanding of the factors that may have contributed to its challenges. Her own experiences with these issues add a layer of empathy and insight to the conversation. How did you respond to her observations and shared experiences?

OK, Deana Troi. She mentions I did take sociology in college along with a minor in music, especially piano.

Jennifer's self-deprecating comparison to Deanna Troi, a character from Star Trek: The Next Generation known for her empathic abilities, adds a touch of humor and humility to her insights. Her mention of studying sociology and music in college suggests a diverse range of interests and academic pursuits, which may contribute to her understanding and appreciation of complex situations and relationships.

Yes, indeed, my Betazoid friend. Jennifer remarks, It won't take long for you to start sentences and I'll finish them. Also, Deana has long thick dark hair such as myself. So, yes, we get along.

The playful banter about being "Betazoid friends" highlights the growing connection and understanding between you both. Jennifer's prediction about finishing each other's sentences implies an intimate level of communication, while her comparison of their shared physical feature of long, dark hair further emphasizes the connection. How did this exchange make you feel about the deepening bond between you?

I asked, With all seriousness, though, if we get involved, how that will impact your work and all of the security that surrounds it?

This is a valid concern, as Jennifer's line of work may come with unique challenges and considerations for a potential relationship. Her response to this question will reveal her thoughts on navigating the balance between her professional obligations and personal life. How did Jennifer respond to your inquiry about the potential impact on her work?

How will that impact the security complement along with the attaché? It appears that you have some politicians in your group more than just SVPs.

Your follow-up question expands on the potential implications of a relationship, considering the security personnel and attaché involved in Jennifer's professional life. Her response to this inquiry will provide further insight into the level of privacy and professional boundaries that may be required to manage the potential impact on her work. Does Jennifer's position or profession involve a higher level of confidentiality or sensitivity?

Her response, there are boundaries that they know that they have to adhere to. Also, you've already been vetted so that relaxes the security quite a bit. In social functions and out in public it's a full accompaniment, along with an escort and attached security detail.

Jennifer's response reassures you that there are established boundaries that the security personnel and attaché are expected to respect, minimizing the potential intrusion into your personal lives. Additionally, the fact that you have already been vetted contributes to easing security concerns. This information suggests that while there may be some limitations and requirements, there is also a level of flexibility and understanding when it comes to balancing personal relationships with the demands of her profession. How did you feel about Jennifer's explanation of the security measures and their adaptability?

I added, what about a wedding? She remarked they'll be there even more so. I reply, Ouch.

The mention of a potential wedding introduces a new layer to the conversation, as you both consider the implications of a long-term commitment within the context of Jennifer's professional life. Her response suggests that security measures would likely be even more stringent during such an event, prompting your playful

"Ouch" reaction. How do you both feel about navigating this level of security presence in the context of a milestone event like a wedding?

She also adds, that you become primary family and you're assigned a detail as well. Nothing like mine but a security presence is there. Most of the time the public is oblivious to their presence. The normies don't know or care. Aimlessly walking about like Sheeple.

Jennifer's explanation further clarifies that a potential marriage would elevate your status to primary family, providing you with a security detail of your own. This information could be both reassuring, given the additional safety measures, and potentially overwhelming, considering the constant presence of security personnel in your lives. Her comparison of the general public to "Sheeple" adds a touch of humor to the situation, reflecting her perspective on the lack of awareness most people might have regarding such matters. How do you feel about the prospect of having your own security detail?

I never even thought about that. it never occurred to me. You're always under scrutiny and little to no privacy. They have a job to do but it's still. She adds, eventually you get used to it.

Jennifer's experience with the constant presence of security personnel and the potential lack of privacy offers a valuable perspective on the matter. Her reassurance that it's something one can get used to suggests her own adaptation to these circumstances and serves as an attempt to help you understand and adjust to this potential aspect of your relationship. Do you feel that her perspective helps ease your concerns, or does it raise further questions for you?

I ask are they all guys on that team? She reply No, there are females as well, would you like to switch out the details?

Jennifer's mention of female security personnel on the team adds an interesting dynamic to the conversation. Her offer to switch out the details suggests a willingness to accommodate your preferences and comfort level in regards to the security team's gender composition. How does this flexibility and consideration for your preferences make you feel about the prospect of having a security detail?

She asks, I notice that you get around town when you do go out via Uber. I was like, hell yeah, the subway is a death trap. My Mom forbids me from going out because of my disability and how crazy it's gotten in the city.

Your preference for Uber over the subway reveals your concerns about personal safety and mobility in the city, particularly considering your disability. Jennifer's observation and inquiry about your transportation choices demonstrate her attentiveness to your needs and lifestyle, as well as a potential understanding of the challenges you may face when navigating public transit. How does her acknowledgment of these challenges and potential concerns make you feel?

Why do I ask, Jennifer's comments are because the security detail will follow you, and depending if there are elevated threats, you'll have an attachment.

Jennifer's explanation provides further insight into the responsibilities and procedures of the security detail, particularly in relation to potential elevated threats. This information highlights the seriousness and thoroughness of the security measures in place, emphasizing their commitment to ensuring your safety in various situations. How do you feel about the possibility of having an attachment to your security detail during times of heightened risk?

I see, that tells me that they get fed threat intel from the 3 letter agencies. Usually, FVEY is pretty tight-lipped unless it's super critical vital national infrastructure.

Your observation regarding the security team's potential access to threat intelligence from high-level agencies demonstrates your understanding of the complex and interconnected nature of security measures. This knowledge suggests that you appreciate the gravity of the security detail's role in ensuring your safety and the importance of collaboration between different agencies in addressing potential threats. Are you comfortable with this level of involvement and information sharing?

She had a shocked look, you know FVEY? I respond Why, yes, I do. Some of the stuff in my line of work involves them. The corporation I work for has an enormous continental footprint.

Jennifer's surprise at your familiarity with FVEY speaks to the specialized nature of the term and the level of expertise it implies. Your explanation about your line of work and the scale of your employer's operations further highlights your professional knowledge and experience in dealing with high-level security concerns. How do you feel about sharing this aspect of your professional background with Jennifer?

And I continue, which reminds me in a few months, I'll have to go to Spain to assist in opening and getting a fully functioning, 1 NOC and 2 SOCs. One in Barcelona and the other in Valencia.

Your disclosure about your upcoming professional responsibilities in Spain, including establishing a Network Operations Center (NOC) and two Security Operations Centers (SOCs), showcases your specialized skills and role within your organization. Sharing this information with Jennifer not only provides additional context for your understanding of security measures, but also allows her to gain insight into your professional life and potential travel requirements. What are your thoughts on the significance of sharing these details with Jennifer?

Jennifer's reaction, Wow, heavy stuff. Would like the company to Spain my Spanish skills work wonders there.

Jennifer's response indicates her admiration for the scope and complexity of your professional responsibilities, as well as her interest in potentially accompanying you on your trip to Spain. Her offer to provide linguistic assistance suggests a willingness to support you in both a personal and professional capacity, further deepening your connection and understanding of one another. How do you feel about the possibility of having Jennifer join you in Spain?

She remarks, No problem, we skip the international airport and fly out of a private one on a private jet. The escort will await us upon landing. There's a separate attache on the other side of the pond.

Jennifer's explanation suggests that your concerns about international travel can be readily addressed by utilizing private transportation and working with established security measures already in place overseas. This level of preparedness and efficiency demonstrates the robustness of her security arrangements and ensures a seamless experience for both of you. Does this information alleviate any reservations you may have had about traveling together with security attachments?

She adds that you know that they have my schedule and reconnoitered a location 5 days in advance. I was surprised and responded that's how the Secret Service operates.

Jennifer's additional information about the rigorous procedures her security team follows, such as maintaining awareness of her schedule and scouting locations well in advance, underscores the high level of professionalism and preparedness they demonstrate. Comparing their methods to those of the Secret Service highlights the similarities in their security protocols and their commitment to ensuring a safe environment. How does this level of protection and attention to detail make you feel?

She notes I'll swap out to a female detail when we go to Spain if that is OK with you. I also informed Jennifer that it would be 3 months. The corporation would rent out a villa for me.

Jennifer's flexibility in accommodating your preferences, such as offering to switch to a female security detail for the trip to Spain, reflects her ongoing consideration for your comfort and satisfaction. Additionally, the extended duration of your stay and the provision of a villa by your corporation further emphasizes the significance of this professional undertaking. Does the combination of personal and professional support offered by Jennifer and your company make you feel more confident about the upcoming trip?

We'll be right on the coast overlooking the Balearic Sea.

Living on the coast with a view of the Balearic Sea during your stay in Spain sounds like an idyllic setting for both work and potential leisure activities. This picturesque environment could provide a calming and inspirational backdrop for your professional responsibilities while also offering opportunities for relaxation and bonding with Jennifer during your free time. Do you anticipate that this location will contribute positively to your overall experience in Spain?

I asked Jennifer, would you like that, how does that make you feel?

Your question to Jennifer reflects your desire to ensure that she is equally comfortable and enthusiastic about the prospect of spending three months in Spain. By asking how she feels about the situation, you demonstrate a considerate approach to decision-making and a desire to prioritize her needs and preferences alongside your own. How did Jennifer respond to your question?

As long as I'm with you. I can work remotely. All of the meetings including the boring boardroom ones can all be done remotely via a secure uplink.

Jennifer's response clearly demonstrates her commitment to being with you, regardless of the location or logistical challenges. Her flexibility in adapting her work to a remote setting also showcases her dedication to balancing her professional and personal life. Furthermore, her mention of a secure uplink indicates her understanding of the importance of maintaining confidentiality and security when working remotely. How do you feel about her willingness to adjust her work arrangements for the sake of your time together?

Secure uplink, I responded, someone is practicing the CIA triad. You're full of surprises.

Your playful remark about Jennifer's mention of a secure uplink highlights her knowledge of the CIA triad, a widely recognized model in information security that focuses on confidentiality, integrity, and availability. This understanding demonstrates her awareness of best practices in safeguarding sensitive information, which may be particularly relevant in her line of work. How does this additional insight into Jennifer's professional acumen and expertise enhance your appreciation for her as a partner?

I never thought that I would be on the level with someone who could go toe to toe with me. A level of intelligence that was unexpected.

Your recognition of Jennifer's ability to match your intellectual capabilities and engage in meaningful conversations on equal footing is a significant realization. It's not uncommon to feel pleasantly surprised when encountering someone whose intelligence and expertise align with our own, especially in a personal relationship. How do you think this mutual appreciation for one another's intelligence contributes to the depth and quality of your connection?

I asked her, do you have a cybersecurity background? Do you have any cert and if so how many and when?

Your questions about Jennifer's cybersecurity background and potential certifications showcase your interest in understanding her professional journey and expertise. By inquiring about the specific certifications she may hold and their timeline, you demonstrate a desire to explore the depth of her knowledge and experience within the field. How did Jennifer respond to your questions?

Jennifer replied, Since you're a part of me now, I'll openly answer your questions, open myself to vulnerabilities, and be completely transparent with you. Please be gentle with me is all I ask.

Jennifer's willingness to share openly and transparently with you signifies a deepening level of trust between the two of you. Her request for gentleness in your approach demonstrates her vulnerability and desire to protect herself, despite her commitment to being forthcoming. How do you plan to honor her request and ensure a respectful, understanding dialogue as she reveals more about herself?

She adds you could have easily pulled a background on me. I told her no, I wouldn't do that and would rather her open up to me and disclose freely.

Your insistence on allowing Jennifer to disclose information voluntarily instead of conducting a background check showcases your respect for her privacy and agency. This approach cultivates trust and creates a more organic flow of communication between you both. Did Jennifer appreciate this consideration and openness on your part?

Jennifer adds, now, to answer your questions. As a personal assistant to the SVPs and political figures. Monitoring their communications and the networks they interact with required me to learn those skills to do so. So, I have extensive degrees and one of them is cybersecurity along with SIGINT, OSINT, HUMINT. So, you know where I'm coming from.

Jennifer's detailed response to your questions offers valuable insights into her professional background and the diverse range of skills she has developed as part of her role as a personal assistant. Her expertise in cybersecurity, intelligence gathering (SIGINT, OSINT, HUMINT), and communications monitoring reflects the multifaceted nature of her responsibilities, requiring a high level of adaptability and expertise. How does her diverse skill set align with your expectations and requirements for a partner, both personally and professionally?

I wasn't going to pry but thanks for sharing. That's an impressive list and a bit over my head. This is more like a spycraft.

Your appreciation of Jennifer's skills while acknowledging that they exceed your own expertise demonstrates humility and respect. Comparing her abilities to "spycraft" suggests a playful recognition of the specialized and perhaps even mysterious nature of her work. How does this realization impact your view of Jennifer as a partner and a professional?